

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A hermetic container used by an image display apparatus or the like is constituted of confronting substrates which are fixed together by a reinforcing member, and an inner space between the substrates is sealed by a sealing member. The reinforcing member is spaced apart from the sealing member to prevent breakage of the hermetic container to be caused by a difference between thermal expansion coefficients of materials.